The Israeli tactical response method is radically different from other combat techniques. Success is based solely on actual performance. This combat system has a distinct advantage being consistently effective throughout history. It has been developed and refined over decades of conflict in the Middle East.

The guiding principle of the method is to neutralize the threat quickly, in the simplest instinctive way possible. Aggressiveness, decisiveness, and speed are all integral elements of Israeli tactical response methods. To this end, proper mindset is heavily stressed.
